

Finding Jewish Records in the MyHeritage Search Engine

By: Daniel Horowitz - Daniel@MyHeritage.com - Twitter: @MyHChiefGen

The MyHeritage search engine for historical records holds billions of records from all over the world. You can run a global search in all collections by specifying a person's first (and middle) name, last name, year of birth, and any place of a life event associated with that person. None of these are mandatory — you can search simply based on what you know. For example, you can search with a first name, and without a surname.

The best way to identify collections related to Jewish people may be searching directly in the Collection Catalog using the word "Jew". This will bring all the collection with Jew, Jewish and any other similar word in the title or description of the collection.

The screenshot shows the MyHeritage website's Collection Catalog search results for the keyword "Jew". The search bar at the top right contains the word "Jew" and is circled in orange. Below the search bar, there are 23 collections found. The results are sorted by the number of records. The first three results are:

Collection	Last updated	Number of records
Slovakia, Church and Synagogue Books, 1592-1910 Church Records 	Dec 22 2013	32,820,903
Lithuanian-Jewish Records from LitvakSIG, 1795-1940 Birth, Marriage & Death 	Mar 9 2021 NEW	4,187,073
Austria, Vienna, Jewish Vital Records, 1835-1938 Birth, Marriage & Death 	Mar 19 2021 NEW	1,036,598
